BOISDALE OF CANARY WHARF

A guide to the Scotch whisky regions

Like wines, the single malts of Scotland are grouped by region although these regions offer a guideline rather than a rule. The regions of Scotland – the Lowlands, the Highlands, Campbeltown and the island of Islay – have their origins in the regulation of licences and duties, but they do also embrace certain characteristics.

The Lowlands

This area tends to produce softer malts, without the peat of the Highlands or the brininess of the coastal malts. The Lowlands is defined by a line following old county boundaries and running from the Clyde estuary to the River Tay. The line swings north of Glasgow and Dumbarton and runs to Dundee and Perth.

The Highlands, Islands and Speyside

By far the largest region, the Highlands embraces wide variations in style. The western Highlands have only a few scattered distilleries, and it is difficult to generalise about their character. If they have anything in common, it is a rounded, firm, dry character, with some peatiness. The far north of the Highlands has several whiskies with a notably heathery, spicy, character, probably deriving both from the local soil and the coastal location of the distilleries. The more sheltered East Highlands and the Midlands of Scotland (sometimes described as the South Highlands) have a number of notably fruity whiskies.

None of these Highland areas is officially regarded as a region, but the area between them, known as Speyside, is universally acknowledged as the heartland of malt distillation. This area, between the cities of Inverness and Aberdeen, sweeps from granite mountains down to fertile countryside, where barley is among the crops. It is the watershed of a system of rivers, the principal among which is the Spey. Although it is not precisely defined, Speyside is commonly agreed to extend at least from the River Findhorn in the west to the Deveron in the east. Within this region are several other rivers, notably the Livet.

The Speyside single malts are noted in general for their elegance and complexity, and often a refined smokiness. Beyond that, they have two extremes: the big, sherried type, as typified by The Macallan, Glenfarclas and Aberlour; and the lighter, more subtle style. Within Speyside, the River Livet is so famous that its name is borrowed by some whiskies from far beyond its glen.

BOISDALE OF CANARY WHARF

Only one may call itself The Glenlivet, only Braes of Glenlivet and Tamnavulin are produced in the valley, and only Tomintoul in the parish. These are all delicate malts, and it could be more tentatively argued that other valleys have malts that share certain characteristics. The Highland region includes a good few coastal and island malts, but one peninsula and just one island have been of such historical importance in the industry that they are each regarded as being regions in their own right.

Campbeltown

On the peninsula called the Mull of Kintyre, on the west coast of Scotland, Campbeltown once had about 30 distilleries. Today, it has only two. One of these, Springbank, produces two different single malts. This apparent contradiction is achieved by the use of a lightly peated malt in one and a smokier kilning in the other. The Campbeltown single malts are very distinctive, with a briny character. Although there are only three of them, they are still considered by serious malt lovers to represent a region in their own right.

Islay

Pronounced "eye-luh", this is the greatest of whisky islands: much of it deep with peat, lashed by the wind, rain and sea in the Inner Hebrides. It is only 25 miles long, but has no fewer than eight distilleries, although not all are working. Its single malts are noted for their seaweedy, iodine-like, phenolic character. A dash of Islay malt gives the unmistakable tang of Scotland to many blended whiskies.

BOISDALE WHISKIES

LIMITED EDITION

BOTTLED BY BERRY BROS & RUDD

BOISDALE CLYNELISH, HIGHLAND

Southerland is Scotland's last wilderness, a region that offers dramatic coastlines and lonely moorland. Clynelish distillery can be found near Brora, a popular resort with golfers and fisherman. Clynelish is renowned for its briny coastal character. This single cask whisky reveals uplifting fruit and vanilla driven aromas with emerging roast beef hints. The flavour is succulent and gives citrus and salt intensities. A beautifully balanced finish crowns the experience.

£14.00

BOISDALE BOWMORE, ISLAY

Bowmore Distillery has been situated on the rugged Hebridean Island of Islay since 1779 and is the second oldest distillery in Scotland today. The location of the distillery on this wind swept Isle has played an important part in determining the legendary smoky and rich character of the single malt whisky it produces.

£10.60

BOISDALE AUCHROISK, SPEYSIDE

Boisdale Auchroisk distillery, (pron. Othrusk), started producing in 1974. A major contributor to some famous blends, it is seldom seen as an independently bottled whisky. This single cask expression has a classic Speyside style nose with plenty of fresh soft yellow fruit, well woven sweet barley and oak. The palate is silky and mouth-watering, balanced with pear juice and apple acidity. The finish is clean, refreshing, uplifting and perilously moreish finale.

BOISDALE LONGMORN, SPEYSIDE

Floral and opulent on the nose, backed up with well-varnished oak, this Longmorn starts the charm offensive long before it gets anywhere near the palate! There's a lovely, sweet attack on the tip of the tongue with roundness provided by the wood and malt undertones. Scottish strawberries and Devon cream crash around the mouth wrestling for supremacy with the luxurious macadamia nut texture. Caramelised peaches, old rosehip, and oozing honeycomb flesh out the forget-me-not finish

£14.90

BOISDALE LINKWOOD, SPEYSIDE

The picturesque linkwood distillery, founded in 1821, is one of the Speyside region's hidden gems. The Victorian buildings remain despite much updating and expansion during the 1960's and 70's. Swans and ducks swim on the distillery dam which provides cooling water for the condensers. Fruit and floral aromas abound with peach skin and vanilla coming to the fore. The delicately smoky palate has a balanced and complex feel, building to deliver nectarine, sugared almonds with sweet floral intensities towards the satisfying elegant finish.

£14.90

BOISDALE TEANINICH, HIGHLANDS

Beguiling and fruity with perfumed aromas emerging. Passion fruit, a touch of lime and polished oak invite further exploration. The palate delivers waves of vanilla, yellow fruit and honey with some toasty influence. A little liquorice kicks in heralding the graceful finish.
